

Bridging the town-gown divide

To better bridge the gap between academia and the public sphere, our journals are introducing a new requirement. Starting from June 2026, our journal authors will be strongly encouraged to include a brief section in their papers outlining the practical relevance of their research for policymakers, alongside their theoretical contributions. This initiative reflects our commitment to ensuring that scholarly work drives meaningful change, particularly within the African context.